

How the Ball mill make money on the farm?

the ball mill generates income on the farm by processing raw agricultural products like grains or seeds into higher-value goods such as flour, animal feed, or other processed products. These value-added products can be sold at a premium in local markets or to supply chains, diversifying the farm's income streams and improving profitability.

For example, on a sustainable farm, the ball mill processes dried maize into fine maize flour. The farm sells the maize flour at a higher price than raw maize, increasing its revenue.